How do you play with yours? Is it the rising shaft, its spreading base buried demurely in white damask? Is it with a caressing thumb or, fingers gently forced apart, the delicate skin between them rubbing rhythmically or barely touching. Is it where the long nipple blooms into the bowl of the glass? Do you stroke its swelling upward curve vertically or cup it lovingly, hot palm cooled by its perfect fit? And the rim? How do you work the rim? With a dry finger? Or can you not resist dipping it in the rich liquid or do you slip it into your mouth, and now wet, massage the open-mouthed circle until its high singing moan makes everyone...look.
